Sistina Restaurant, New York, NY
Thurs., Jan 4th 9:30 am Departure

The Metropolitan Museum of Art examines one of the most significant artistic dialogues in modern art. Born only two years apart, Édouard Manet and Edgar Degas were friends, rivals, and, at times, antagonists whose work shaped the development of modernist painting in France. This exhibit takes a fresh look at the interactions of these two artists and their artistic choices, deepening our understanding of a key moment in 19th-century French art history. By examining the ways in which their careers intersected and presenting their work side by side, this exhibition investigates how their careers overlapped and diverged.

Luncheon will be held at Sistina Restaurant.
